Idaho Nursery & Landscape Association Presents Three Scholastic Awards at 2017 Idaho Horticulture Expo

During the Idaho Horticulture Expo, four students were chosen for their scholastic record, student need and their ability and sincerity in pursuing employment in the nursery industry in Idaho. Each student received a check for $750.00. Listed below are students who won the scholarships:

Clayton Zimmerman, who is from Weiser, Idaho. Clayton is currently attending the University of Idaho. His major field of study is Sustainable Crop and Landscape Systems with Emphasis in Environmental Horticulture, with a minor in Crop Science & Landscape Architecture. Clayton chose this major because, “[he] wanted to work mostly outside, and [he] wanted to be a business owner.” He plans to “...bring productivity and efficiency to the green industry. To also express [his] creativity and eye for design where ever [he] [works].”

David Hokanson, who is from Westerville, Nebraska, and is currently attending BYU - Idaho. His major field of study is Horticulture with an Emphasis in Landscape design with a minor in Business. David chose this major because, “Horticulture has always played a big part in [his] life.” He hopes “...to become the type of person who will inspire other to realize the benefits horticulture can bring to life.”

Camille Werner, who is from Southeast, Idaho, and is currently attending BYU – Idaho. Her major field of study is Horticulture with a minor in Production. Camille “...fell in love with the green industry,” and plans “...to stay in Idaho and work as a grower at a wholesale nursery.”
